

Wait. For. It.

Encouragement For Those Desiring Some Dream, Someone, Something, Some Day.

What are you waiting for? Daily we wait. The average person spends at least three years waiting before reaching 70 years old. What are we doing with that time?

I hurry. The world hurries. Do we want to wait on anything anymore?

Daily we wait in traffic and grocery store lines; we wait for previews in a movie (why are there so many of those, by the way?). We also wait for babies to be born, flowers to bloom, seasons to change, for relationships and love to deepen and strengthen. What is the difference between waiting for things that seem to waste our time and things that are the hand of God? Is it all the hand of God? I wrestle with these questions. Waiting is needed, is Biblical, is part of life.

Much of my life has been spent waiting – waiting on dreams, waiting on career promotions, waiting on true, Godly love, waiting on wounds to heal, waiting on God's purpose for His Kingdom through me, even waiting for my wedding night before having sex. The Holy Spirit has laid it on my heart to write on waiting, on patience, on purity, on what to do with ourselves as we wait for the triumphs of our lives. Within the non-fiction pages lie authentic stories, revelations, “heavy wait” questions and “Light wait” answers as we seek and wait inwardly, outwardly, and upwardly. The wait is over. Join me on the journey.

“For the revelation awaits an appointed time; it speaks of the end and will not prove false. Though it linger, wait for it; it will certainly come and will not delay.” – Habakkuk 2:3.

God has us
struggle alone,
waiting silently,

About the Author

Danya M. Jordan's debut non-fiction work caps 15 years of Bible studies and church leadership, 19 years of professional writing and speaking, and practically a lifetime of hilarious and provoking storytelling. Her mission statement is one word – “Shine!” – based on Matthew 5:16. Her “day job” is as a major gift fundraiser – a “blessings broker” – for an excellent health-care system in Charleston, SC. As a single lady, her heart's desire is to try to serve Jesus with every breath and, oh yeah, for Godly marriage and a family. Meanwhile, she is savoring every moment of the “wait.” She loves laughing with family and friends, breathing in the majestic mountain air in western North Carolina, kayaking, reading, gardening, and making trumpet sounds with her mouth without a trumpet.
